“Vivarium” is a deck building, resource management game about nature. You are the Landlord. Your task is to pay the water, gas, electricity bills to keep the water pump working. The sooner you raise your good neighbors’ spirits by delivering the necessary services, the sooner you will receive rewards. Game Features: – It’s a real time strategy game, but with elements of trickery and a traditional staking mechanic. – It features a simple, strategic gameplay, a variety of characters, and a beautiful, lively atmosphere. – There is a great variety of tilesets, both across the game’s board and in the town as a whole. – Every character has their own characteristic personality – and they need to be treated with care. – There are unique, custom-made fish and wildlife, making their appearance in your park. – We have tied the game to a particular season, so each time you play, a different season can be selected. – The gameplay is fast and addictive, but not too difficult to learn. – The game is a hot mess of rules and special cases, so it is advised you have a few coffee breaks along the way. If you have played a game like this in the past, you will instantly feel comfortable while playing vivarium. Even if you have never played a game like this before, you should be able to play it within 15 minutes. The Story: In the Autumn of 1885, there was a new Doctor in town. He would do everything he could to make people believe that he was a new kind of Doctor. The people of Enklai were very curious about this new Doctor, and their lives changed in a very short time. The odd and mysterious Doctor would sometimes visit the town in the early morning hours, when the citizens of the town were still sleeping in their beds. Maybe you want to act like a real Doctor and help Dr. Fennigan? Vivarium – Story Trailer: Vivarium – Gameplay Trailer: Vivarium – Developer Trailer: Team: We are a small indie development studio made up of passionate gamers. We are currently working on releasing vivarium. We have experience working on a number of different genres, including card games, board games and simulation games. Our team has a diverse and unique portfolio of game-

The problem If you squint and look deep into the blue, you may notice these stars. That's your eye playing tricks on you - Super Blood Wolf Moon occurs slightly above the curve of the moon. These stars share the ability to make young people into fans of astronomy, they give free trips to outer space and make it easier to take a "wolf pup" for a walk. You are seeing Andromeda, also known as the Andromeda Galaxy. It is a vast grouping of galaxies with more than 2 trillion stars, and the nearest galaxy to ours. We can't see Andromeda as easily as the Milky Way, but the Andromeda Galaxy is visible in the night sky. This is also the closest galaxy to our own. Credit: Tony Landman / Coventry Astronomical Society A frolicking wolf, a twinkling evening You are seeing Lyra, also called the constellation of the Harp. It is another huge grouping of stars arranged in a pattern of a grand chorus. You can see the two stars in what is called the Lyra Anchor Hold on a small telescope. This star constellation is below the horizon at night. These stars are small and so easy to miss. A telescope will show you it is easiest to make out the more distant ones that look like dots. This image was taken from the UK. It's the sight to awe any astronomy fan. The first Super Blood Wolf Moon occurs on 6th November lunar eclipse. It is the only time a full lunar eclipse occurs at the same time as the Winter Solstice. They also occur on a new moon and Full moon every year. They are known as Super Blood Moon Eclipses. This one is the first since it was the 28th Super Blood Wolf Moon since the December 1971/January 1972. Old Moons are big and red and new moons are smaller. The Full Moon is technically a red moon that our eyes filter out because of the change in hue. When it is big and bright enough, it's easy to see the difference. The size of our Halley's Comet and the moon is roughly equivalent. The next time there is a Super Blood Wolf Moon

In Spider-Man's origins, he was a criminal. As a child Spider-Man swung around rooftops and skirted walls while battling his older, more experienced (but dim-witted) nemeses, The Chameleon, The Scorpion, The Sandman and others. As Spider-Man grew, so did his need for peace. He swore off crime and became a law-abiding hero, crusading for the social good of New York City. In The Amazing Spider-Man 2, you'll be the friendly neighborhood Spider-Man. Peter Parker has promised to quit being Spider-Man to marry his high school sweetheart Gwen. However, there's something about Gwen's fiery nature that he can't resist - and that first swing as Spider-Man may have just changed his life. In Spider-Man Shattered Dimensions, you'll re-live some of your favorite Spider-Man stories and action from across all six Spider-Man game series! Travel back to re-live the amazing Spider-Man adventures of the past! Playing as Spider-Man is easy. Web-Sling and swing from building to building, wall-jump and swing down fire escapes and across the rooftops. This is not an action-heavy, cinematic Spider-Man game. It will feature Spidey's trademark web-swinging abilities. Online and Game Center Achievements: We support online and game center achievements. You can find more details on our achievements page. Spider-Man Shattered Dimensions will include a variety of achievements based on accomplishments in all six Spider-Man games! What's new in Spider Wars:

is a story of how love can bring people together and lead them to accomplish more than they ever thought was possible. Spider is a bold and strong woman who embodies determination and strength in the face of adversity. When she comes home, she wears an orange sash reading "SJES" across her chest. Spider is playful, loyal, and modest. Spider has always shown more loyalty than any other member of the team, given the way she has always looked out for Gloria. She is one of the strongest female competitors on the show. Despite her ferocity in training, Spider avoids any pairings. She is on several spin teams but usually gets put on the middle spots and often works with the weak and least agile members of the house. In later seasons, Spider is paired with Joe Moroso. Despite being romantically interested in Joe, she is kind, brave, and truthful with him, making him believe that she can handle anything. In the "The Final Battle" finales when Simon and Jessica confessed to each other and voted each other out, the Bravoholics were divided, but Spider voted for Simon because she respected him. In Diamonds Are Forever, Joe Moroso told Lisa he loves Spider, and she was very happy. In Big Brother 2, she was involved in a Make-a-Wish Foundation competition between herself and Carrie, who ended up going home. Two years later, in Big Brother 5, Joe Moroso was once again her closest ally. Together they portrayed a true love story even though it wasn't their real on-camera romance. They are constantly seen together. Even though they are the last two to be evicted, they make a pact to make their love last. When she was in the final 3 with Chima, Joe, and Ronnie, he told her that he wasn't afraid to be evicted; that he knew what they were doing together was romantic. In the finale, Joe Moroso was declared the MVP for their affections and loyalty. Joe testified in front of the jury that he refused to lie to Sarah, and said in the "We Only Lie Once" reunion that he was indeed a tiger. Eventually Spider broke up with Joe Moroso, later describing to Vicki that she had been afraid of losing him. In 2009, she was supposed to go into the house with a veto dangling over her head to better her odds of remaining at the top. While Robbie was dumbstruck, Sarah approached Spider and asked her to drop the veto
